If the City of Waveland is successful in their efforts, they may have a new way of funding city projects. The city is looking at the possibility of funding up to $3.5 million in projects with a Tax-Increment Financing (TIF) bond issue.

City planners Chris Gouras and Lucien Bourgeois introduced the idea at the regular alderman's meeting on Tuesday. The TIF would be secured by expected new sales tax and ad valorem tax revenues from the new Walmart Super Center.

To capture the revenue stream from the project, the TIF would have to be

Center for Prevention of Child Abuse opens in Bay

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

Officials at the Hancock County Families First Resource Center hope the facility's new location will be beneficial for both the center and the community.

The local branch of the Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse has moved to the Masonic Temple at 125 Main St. in Bay St. Louis.

"The location on Main Street is a little more visible in the community and is more convenient for people to access the resource library for families and professionals and the classes we will offer," said Laurie Johnson, program director.

The center has operated out of the Shieldsborough Square shopping center off Dunbar Avenue for the last six or seven years.

"It's wonderful," Johnson said about the new space. "We're surrounded by community oriented businesses, and we have a beautiful room for the library and the parenting classes."

Besides the need for the center to be more conspicuous, Johnson said more room was also a factor in the move.

She said additional space was needed to hire more staff. The center, she said, is currently in the process of hiring and will have four full-time employees once a full staff has been hired. The new location also offers more room for the services the center offers, which includes case management, transparenting classes, supervised visitation, information and referral services and a parent support group.

The center will also offer a family resource library which "provides families and professionals access to books, videotapes, equipment and brochures that offer education and information on a wide variety of family and child issues as well as local resources."

Johnson said the parenting classes will begin in January with the other classes following within the following months.

Another objective of the center is to involve the community.

In an effort to do this and make the center more visible, board member Camille Tate searched the local art community to find an artist who could transfer the center's logo to canvas.

Donna Davenport at The Loft recommended painter Kathe Calhoun for the job.

Calhoun, who has been painting for the last 35 years, agreed to paint the banner, which will hang in the front door of the Masonic Temple building.

"I am exceedingly happy with the banner," Tate said. "It's beautiful. It's exactly what we wanted."

By picking a local artist, Tate said the center has involved the artist community and the people in downtown Bay St. Louis.

For more information about the Hancock County Families First Resource Center, call 228-463-0000 or visit the center at 125 Main St., Suite E, in Bay St. Louis.

Local supergroup reunites

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Local 1970's band Corruption will hold a benefit concert this Saturday, Dec. 15 from 8-12 p.m. at the Hancock County Civic Center. All proceeds will be donated to "Christmas for Kids" which helps children who may not otherwise receive Christmas gifts with donations of toys and gifts.

The band, who will present the concert with all the original members, played their first concert in 1970. They were well known around the area for their concerts at youth centers, weddings, and Mardi Gras and St. Patrick's Day concerts held on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

The group also traveled extensively throughout the Gulf Coast and East Coast for about three years. Some of the members of the band went on to play with other bands.

The original band held its first reunion in more than 20 years in 1999, when they played another Christmas benefit concert for the Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse.

"The turnout was so good that we decided to do it again," said drummer Mike Horne. "This is only the second time we have played together since the 70's."

The band got together while many of the group were in high school. "We had a party every Friday night and jammed, and the group came out of that," said Horne.

"We used to play every weekend and drive all night Sunday to get back in time to go to work on Monday," said Horne of the band's younger days.

"I have no regrets. You meet a lot of people, and music is a natural high."

The band will be playing some of its old standards such as Carly Simon, the Eagles, Charly Daniels and others. They are also learning some new songs, Horne said.

Tickets for the benefit are $25 per couple which includes set-ups and door prizes. If you are interested, call Horne at 466-6458 evenings or 209-0227 days.

NASA Stennis Space Center participates in Centennial of Flight at Kitty Hawk

THE SEA COAST ECHO

NASA Stennis Space Center (SSC), the nation's largest rocket test complex, will send a Space Shuttle Main Engine (SSME) to Kitty Hawk, N.C., for the Centennial of Flight celebration Dec. 12-17 at the Wright Brothers National Memorial.

"The SSME is the culmination of aeronautic propulsion," said Aerospace Technologist Bryon Maynard of NASA's Propulsion Systems and Technologies at SSC. "It's the extreme example of man's achievement in flight."

Orville and Wilbur Wright's first heavier-than-air powered flight in 1903 lasted 12 seconds at 10 mph, and traveled 120 feet. NASA's Shuttle flights have lasted up to 17 days at more than 17,000 mph, and have traveled over 5 million miles.

On Nov. 14, the 17,000-pound SSME left SSC on a flatbed trailer, bound for the Outer Banks of North Carolina, where the Wright Brothers made their historic first flight.

The SSME that awed and educated visitors at its permanent home at StennisSpace, the visitor center at SSC, will be seen by an audience of more than 100,000 guests at the centennial celebration.

Maynard said, "Sending the SSME to Kitty Hawk is an opportunity for people to learn what NASA does in South Mississippi."

SSC manages NASA's rocket propulsion test assets and activities in Mississippi, at Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama, at Glenn Research Center in Ohio and at the White Sands Test Facility in New Mexico. The center's main mission since 1975 has been to test all Space Shuttle Main Engines that power the Space Shuttle during its 8 1/2-minute ascent to orbit.

SSC also tests and proves flight-worthy rocket propulsion systems for current and future space vehicles and provides test services for government and commercial customers.

Throughout the week, dignitaries from the aviation world and the U.S. military, as well as the general public, will take part in various activities marking 100 years of flight. The event culminates Dec. 17 with a reenactment of the Wrights' flight in a replica of their first plane, hosted by actor and pilot John Travolta.

StennisSpace currently features a Centennial of Flight exhibit, "From First Flight to Space Flight," which includes a 1/6-scale model of the Wrights' first flyer, showcasing the astonishing achievements of human flight over the past century and highlighting the NASA-developed technologies that have helped make life better on Earth.

StennisSpace's fall/winter hours are Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The center is closed Sundays and all major holidays. Tours begin at the Launch Pad, Exit 2, I-10, near Bay St. Louis. Admission to StennisSpace is free.

For more information, call (228) 688-2370 or 1-800-237-1821 or visit www.nasa.gov/public/visitors.

Many events mark this holiday season

It is time for chamber members to make reservations for the Annual Membership Meeting and Installation of Officers scheduled Friday, December 12, 7:30 a.m. at Casino Magic's Bay Tower Hotel's Cypress Cove Ballroom.

Reservations are $15 each which includes a breakfast buffet. Deadline to make reservations is Wednesday, December 10. Members should have received information on the event and need to respond to the chamber. We hope to see you at the chamber's annual meeting.

Now that we are in the Christmas Season many events of importance are beginning to take place.

Our Library System has several events which should be of interest to many.

On Friday, Dec. 5, 1 to 2:30 p.m. at the Pearlington Public Library, "Celebrate the Season" will be held.

Charles B. Murphy students will display trees they have decorated, a visit from Santa, Holiday Caroling and Storytelling is among the events.

On Sunday afternoon, from 1 to 4 p.m., an event with no other like it in Hancock County, will take place at the Bay St. Louis Hancock County Library, and that is the Holiday Tree Gala.

Some of the most beautifully decorated Christmas trees will be on display at the main library.

There will be special entertainment and of course, Santa will be there to take the 'wish lists' from youngsters.

The Kiln Community Tree Lighting will be a high light for Tuesday, December 9, at the Kiln Library at 6 p.m.

Choirs will be on hand and Santa will arrive on a big Kiln Fire Truck too.

Waveland's Public Library will be the place to be on Saturday, December 13, at 5 p.m. for the City of Waveland's Festival of Lights.

Coleman Avenue Merchants will offer some specials and offer a few refreshments too.

On Saturday, December 6, at 4 p.m., Pearlington will highlight its Annual Christmas Parade.

Following the parade, there will be caroling and refreshments at the West Hancock Fire Department in Pearlington. The parade begins in Oak Harbor at Highway 90 and travels west to Highway 604 and continues to the red brick church.

For information, call 533-9128.

On Friday, do not forget the annual Christmas in the Pass celebration which begins at 5:30 p.m., at War Memorial Park.

Elementary choirs will perform following the arrival of Santa. There will be the lighting of the Christmas Tree, a parade in downtown Pass, in addition to a lighted boat parade scheduled to start at 7 p.m.

Gulf Coast natives left impact on Miss.

A week ago, two Gulf Coast natives of extraordinary talents, Bill Simpson and Boyce Holleman, died after long careers that in their special way left a deep impact on Mississippi history of the last half-century.

Bill Simpson was, you might say, Mr. Inside. His role was always invisible to public view. But words and ideas he crafted for powerful state leaders in the 1960s and 70s shaped much of the state's policy of that time.

Boyce Holleman, you would have to say, was Mr. Outside. His colorful career ranged all the way from being a Mississippi-version of Clarence Darrow in the courtroom to, mind you, acting in a Eudora Welty novel on the movie screen.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

Holleman, who died of cancer at age 79, almost saw his life ended in World War II as a 20-year-old Navy fighter pilot whose plane was shot down in flames near the Japanese-held island of Saipan.

Severely burned, he was rescued from the sea by a Navy destroyer, and survived only after later undergoing 36 skin-grafts and multiple blood transfusions.

He still bore some signs of the skin-grafts when he arrived in Jackson in 1948 as a frisky newly-elected representative from tiny Stone County in the Mississippi House. His 1948 House "class" is still considered the most progressive to ever hit the Capital city.

More in a moment about the remarkable Mississippi journey of Jesse Boyce Holleman over the next four decades.

Simpson, the onetime Gulf Coast shrimp-picker turned political guru, died at age 80 in Washington where the former Harrison countian first landed 35 years ago to become right-hand man and confidant of Mississippi's senior U.S. senator, Jim Eastland.

In later years, Simpson had built a new career, becoming aide to Hamilton Jordan, President Jimmy Carter's chief of staff, and afterwards going on his own as a valued Washington consultant and lobbyist for the state of Mississippi.

But to this longtime observer of the Mississippi scene, Simpson's years in Jackson during the mid-1960s as special aide to Gov. Paul B. Johnson, Jr. provided his most vital contribution to state history.

Of the myriad number of figures I've seen come across the public stage, none was a better word craftsman or better understood the dynamics of political cause and effect than Bill Simpson, always behind the scene.

Following on the heels of Ross Barnett's four years of tempestuous, virtually rebellious, relations with the federal government, Mississippians had little hope that when Paul Johnson became governor in January, 1964 there would be any change.

Sensing that the assassi-

Thank God for our military

Three weeks ago, my wife and I visited Pearl Harbor.

After a documentary video about the events of that Sunday morning, Dec. 7, 1941, we sailed out to the memorial of the USS Arizona. There we stood and read many of the names of the 1177 individuals who died that day while serving our nation on the USS Arizona. Many of them were preparing for church services that morning. None of them expected it to be his last day alive. Most of the bodies of these 1,177 still lie in their sunken grave in Pearl Harbor. That day 2,390 military and civilians died during that surprise attack. Half of them died on the Arizona.

That day a "sleeping giant awoke," and the "enemy" was soon to be faced with something they had not counted on - the power of American patriotism.

While on the Arizona memorial, I thought also of the more than 3,000 civilians that lost their lives in another surprise attack on Sept. 11, 2001. On that day, terrorist foolishly thought that they could cause our nation to crumble by destroying the Financial Towers and the innocent people within them. What our new enemy did not understand was that it was not these symbols of our economy that made the U.S. great. Contrary to the political idiom, "It's the economy, stupid," the fact is it isn't the economy that makes America great. The goodness and strength of America is the power of Faith, Freedom, and Patriotism.

Today, I, like most of you, am saddened any time I hear about any of our valiant military personnel falling to terrorist attacks. But, I realize that if our military were not fighting the terrorist around Baghdad, we would be fighting them here in our homeland and hundreds or thousands of unsuspecting civilians would be dying as the result of these cowardly acts at the hands of terrorism's demons of evil.

Sadams Insane [Hussein] claimed to have no connection with the Al Quida. Yet, shortly before Baghdad, Saddam, or one of his look-alikes, went on Baghdad television calling for all the world's terrorist to come to Iraq and fight the "evil" Americans. I couldn't help but think, "What better place for the terrorist to be than head-on with the strongest military power in the world." It is much better for all of us to have the terrorist in Iraq fighting trained military than on the streets of Europe and America attacking common everyday working people.

We all hate to lose any of our military personnel. But, each life sacrificed by one of our military probably saves dozens of lives here at home and gives the people of Iraq the opportunity to believe in a future of freedom rather than tyranny.

Today, along with remembering Pearl Harbor, I plan to spend some time thanking God for our military and praying for their protection.

nation of President Kennedy a month before Johnson was to take office signaled a time for Mississippi to declare an end to massive resistance, Simpson convinced Johnson that, in effect, he should declare Mississippi would rejoin the Union.

He crafted for Johnson perhaps the state's most important inaugural address of the 20th century with the memorable phrase that the state would move "out of the backwaters of the nation."

Brought up in rough-and-tumble Harrison County political warfare, (his father ran a seafood factory, then was mayor of Pass Christian and a deputy sheriff), Simpson long ago became a disciple of the Paul B. Johnson-Jim Eastland political faction.

Mississippi has never been given to labeling factions as "machines" on the order of the Longs of neighboring Louisiana, but the 40-year regime of Johnson-Eastland was our closest approximation.

Simpson's talents as a master speechwriter and idea-man served Paul B. Johnson, Jr. until Johnson went out of office in 1968, and inevitably, he was pulled up to Washington by Sen. Jim Eastland, at a time Eastland was Senate President Pro Tempore.

By this time, Eastland seemed ready to move away from his hard line segregationist stance, and with Simpson putting his imprint on Eastland's rhetoric he moved toward moderation until stepping down in 1978.

Boyce Holleman didn't just smoothly move from the Legislature to the Harrison County District Attorney's job in 1953. It was more like having to blast his way in.

In the most remarkable election challenge case I ever covered, the DA's race between Holleman and incumbent Arnie Lopez (the district covered four coastal area counties) wound up being decided in a full-blown jury trial in a Pearl River County courtroom.

Surrounded by a mountain of ballot boxes and paper ballots, Holleman's team of attorneys, led by Joel Blass of Wiggins, proved that at least five dead persons had been voted in Harrison County, and 144 others appearing on the rolls as having voted had not.

For 19 years, the mustachioed cigar-chomping Holleman was the most colorful and noted DA in Mississippi (though he failed three times to convict the notorious "Cowboy" Dale Morris of murder for shooting down a Bay St. Louis shop owner on the doorstep of his home.)

His courtroom reputation vaulted him into later becoming one of the state's premier criminal defense attorneys, and along the way to hone his natural talents as an actor, with his rich basso profundo voice in roles on the theater stage or on the screen.

Keeping his day job as a lawyer, for a time he delighted audiences around Mississippi and elsewhere in a one-man stage performance emulating renowned criminal defense attorney Clarence Darrow in his famed defense in the 1925 Scopes evolution trial.

Hollywood began using him in lawyer roles in small B-grade whodunit movies, as he landed spots on several TV series, notably "In the Heat of the Night."

When Eudora Welty's charming 1950s novel "Ponder Heart" was brought back to the screen in a Hallmark movie for PBS a couple years ago (I had seen it performed on Broadway in 1956) it especially pleased me to see Boyce playing the role of the patriarchal Judge Sam Ponder.

Bill Simpson and Boyce Holleman—two solid, unforgettable characters. They don't make them that way anymore.

"I'm very excited," said Kim Stasny, Bay-Waveland school superintendent. "It seems like a wonderful opportunity for our kids."

Planning for the youth development program - a United Way of South Mississippi initiative in cooperation with the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District, the Hancock County Human Resources Agency and the Boys and Girls Club of the Gulf Coast - began in August.

The board for the Gulf Coast organization officially approved the Hancock County unit on Tuesday.

Said Lora Mederos, director of the human resources agency: "Our agency has recognized this as a desperate need the community has had for many years. We're anxious to see it get started and grow and flourish."

The mission of the national organization, which is over 140 years old, is to help youngsters realize their full potential as productive, responsible and caring citizens.

The Gulf Coast group, formed in 1966, currently has clubs in East Biloxi, West Biloxi, North Gulfport and Pass Christian.

In 2002, the Gulf Coast clubs served over 2,500 registered members and thousands of additional outreach youth in five core areas: education and career development, character and leadership development, health and life skills, arts and sports, and fitness and recreation.

The new Hancock County

unit will be funded by an early childhood grant from the Mississippi Department of Human Services Office for Children and Youth plus seed money from the Boys and Girls Club of America.

United Way of South Mississippi, the state Attorney General's office and community funding. Chuck Benvenuti, one of the Hancock County organizers, said $20,000 to $30,000 will have to be raised locally to support the program during its first year.

Initially, the Hancock County unit will serve 100 youngsters ages 5 through 18 for the after school program (2:30-6 p.m. weekdays) and 200 to 220 youngsters during the summer (7 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays). The after-school program will include a snack; the summer program will include breakfast and lunch.

Participants in the Hancock County program will be chosen by random drawing.

Youngsters who are not chosen on Dec. 13 may be put on a waiting list for future opportunities.

Staffing for the club will include a paid full-time unit director, a part-time membership services aide, a part-time program director and five program instructors. All staff members will undergo complete FBI background checks, a check of the child abuse registry and drug tests.

Additional staff will be hired for the summer program. "It will be a well-supervised program," Stasny said.

Organizers are optimistic that the Second Street program is the beginning of something much bigger. They hope that the program will expand to other schools in Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County.

"We know there will be a lot of people interested," said Sue Reed, executive director of the Gulf Coast organization. "It's going to be great."

CSX -- crash still costing

company brought in to clean up the mess.

On Tuesday representatives from CSX Ron Elliot and Tom Lyles told aldermen that the city was obligated to pay 30 percent of the cleanup fees owed to Center State because that was the agreement that the contractor made with the city via talks with Mayor Tommy Longo and then Public works director Ray Eaton. Lyles said Eaton asked the contractor to do extra work.

But Longo said the city never made any such agreement and never called in the contractor, that CSX called in the contractor to restore the damage caused solely by the train derailment. There was no other damage to the area other than that caused by the derailment, Longo said.

Lyles said that CSX was responsible for cleanup on CSX property but that damage was caused to city property also and that is where the 30 percent obligation came in. But after Alderman Keith Mitchell questioned him on this reasoning, Lyles recanted his statement.

Confusion could have come because of damage to drainage lines and landscaping on city property, Longo said, which had to be repaired. But the damage to drainage lines and landscaping, which were on city property, was caused by the derailment, Longo said, and repairs should be the obligation of CSX.

Lyles agreed that there could be confusion about payment obligations. He said that CSX would of course restore any areas damaged by the derailment. Both parties agreed to continue talks later this week to hopefully settle issues without the need for litigation.

The talks will also include discussions on the closing of the Dubuc Lane rail crossing, which CSX hopes to close in March.

Lyles presented the city with a quit claim deed signed by former Mayor John Mason which gives the city a 50 foot right of way to build a new road access to areas which would be affected by the closing of the Dubuc crossing. The mayor and aldermen said they had been unaware of the right of way deed, until Lyles presented it.

Talks will also continue on street repairs at the accident site.

In other business: The Department of Marine Resources gave their approval to go forward with a feasibility study for possible uses for beach areas in the city. The study will be paid for by Tideland Funds. A marina, which was proposed several years back, will be one of the possible uses looked at by the study. The marina idea was met with strong opposition during the last administration. Alderman at that time permanently tabled the idea for the remainder of their terms of office. The marina was proposed to be located at the foot of Coleman and Terrace Avenues.

The city is submitting applications for grant funding for a $1.3 million project for the refurbishment of Coleman Ave. The project, if funded would resurface the street, add sidewalks, and refurbish infrastructure.

Bond -- $3.5M

approved before the year's end when the business would become a part of the county tax roles, said Gouras.

Because of the end of the year deadline the approval process for the bond will have to be put into high gear, said Bourgeois. A public hearing on the issue will have to be held the week of Christmas and has been set for December 23 at 6:30 at the Waveland Municipal Court Facility at 628 Hwy. 90, one of the only possible days after the three required weeks of advertisement for the hearing.

In the mean time the city will also have to fine tune their redevelopment plan, which must be approved by the city planning and zoning board and put on display at the court house for public inspection. The plan will loosely outline proposals for how the bond money would be spent.

The good news for taxpayers in the city, Bourgeois explained, is that the city's obligation for repayment is limited to a percentage of the new tax revenues generated by the Super Walmart. The city pledges a percentage to bond repayment and the remainder of the tax revenues from the business still go into city coffers.

Should a disaster, such as a hurricane destroy the Super Center or if it were to go out of business, the city would have no legal obligation to repay the bond under the terms of the agreement, Bourgeois said. But because the city will be using bond dollars to finance projects all over the city and not just at the development site, that would imply a moral obligation for payback, he said, and the obligation would effect the city's credit rating.

The TIF was initiated to encourage development and attract big business to an area by providing a means for financing needed infrastructure improvements in the area of the business location, but can be used to finance projects in other areas of the municipality, Bourgeois said.

The types of projects that the city is looking at financing with the TIF are infrastructure projects such as water, sewer, drainage or utilities, road construction and refurbishment, repair and rehabilitation of municipal structures, pier improvements, sidewalks, parks and recreation improvements, cemetery improvements and lighting for city streets.

Employers eligible for tax credits

Mississippi employers who hire from targeted groups are eligible for a tax credit of up to $8,500 under the Welfare-to-Work Tax Credit or up to $2,400 under the Work Opportunity Tax Credit, according to the Mississippi Employment Security Commission (MESC).

If the new hire is a long-term family assistance recipient, the employer may claim up to 35 percent of qualified wages in the first year of employment under the Welfare-to-Work Tax Credit.

For the second year, 50 percent of qualified wages may be claimed. Qualified wages are capped at $10,000 per year.

To receive the Work Opportunity Tax Credit, employers must hire from one of the following eight targeted groups: qualified family assistance recipients, qualified veterans, qualified ex-felons, high risk youth, vocational rehabilitation referrals, qualified summer youth, qualified food stamp recipients and qualified supplemental security income recipients.

The Work Opportunity Tax Credit is up to $2,400 for each new hire and qualified wages are capped at $6,000 per year.

Employers must apply for and receive certification from MESC. The IRS Form 8850, "Pre-Screening Notice and Certification Request for the Work Opportunity and Welfare-to-Work Credits," will help employers determine if a worker will make them eligible for the tax break. IRS Form 8850 must be completed on or before the date a job offer is made.

For more information, please visit <http://www.usese.doleta.gov/tax.asp> or the Work Opportunity and Welfare-to-Work fax-on-demand service. Employers must call 1-877-828-2050 (a toll-free number) from a fax machine to use the service.

Employers may also request form 8850 by calling John Jones, MESC Programs and Methods Department, at (601) 961-7591.

Civil Air Patrol receives 'Excellent' rating during recent AF Evaluation

BY 1LT MARIE HABERSTROH

Members of the Civil Air Patrol from across the state of Mississippi gathered for a Search and Rescue, Disaster Relief and Counter narcotics Evaluation by a U. S. Air Force Inspection Team at Hawkins Field in Jackson.

This daylong event covered air, ground and mission support in a variety of simulated missions. Locating several downed aircraft and aerial photo reconnaissance of a simulated hurricane were also practiced. Some of the mission personnel included communications, chaplains, administration, public affairs, flight line management, finance, and security. Volunteers were made up of adults and cadets.

Col John Wilkes, the Mississippi Wing Commander said, "the Mississippi Wing is ready and willing to handle any mission that the Air Force, federal government or the State of Mississippi has for us." Lt Col Frank Billard, the Evaluation Team Chief and Director of Operations for the Air Force Southeast Liaison Region to the Civil Air Patrol, noted a very strong performance overall with no weak areas. He said, "the performance we saw today typifies the performance level that we have come to expect from the Mississippi Wing."

Eighty-six wing members participated in the exercise. Seven aircraft from across the state were utilized.

Civil Air Patrol, the official Air Force Auxiliary, is a nonprofit organization with more than 64,000 members nationwide. It performs 95% of the continental U. S. inland search and rescue missions as tasked by the Air Force Rescue Coordination Center. Volunteers also perform homeland security, disaster relief and counter drug missions at the request of federal, state and local agencies.

Bay's Mickey Lagasse receives Homeland Security training

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has just completed training for Mickey Lagasse of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, at its National Emergency Training Center. Homeland Security trains thousands of Americans at this facility each year to enhance the ability of communities to manage significant emergencies and disasters.

"Homeland Security trains thousands of firefighters, emergency service personnel, government officials and private citizens every year. This training helps better secure the homeland - saving lives, protecting property and enhancing disaster planning, response and recovery across the country," said Michael D. Brown, Under Secretary of Homeland Security for Emergency Preparedness and Response. "Graduates of these training programs make a major contribution back at home, in communities such as Bay St. Louis."

Mr. Lagasse completed the Managing Floodplain Development through the National Flood Insurance Program course in Emmitsburg, Maryland, on Nov. 21. This course is designed to provide an organized training opportunity for local officials responsible for administering their local floodplain management ordinance. The course focuses on the National Flood Insurance Program and concepts of floodplain management, maps and studies, ordinance administration, and the relationship between floodplain management and flood insurance.

On March 1, FEMA became part of the U.S. Dept. of Homeland Security. FEMA's continuing mission within the new department is to lead the effort to prepare the nation for all hazards and effectively manage federal response and recovery efforts following any national incident. FEMA also initiates proactive mitigation activities, trains first responders, and manages Citizen Corps, the National Flood Insurance Program and the U.S. Fire Administration.

Supers eye billboard moratorium

BY BENNIE
SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Building official Mickey Lagasse asked Supervisors to consider a moratorium on bill boards along Hwy. 90 and Hwy. 607 in the Stennis Buffer Zone, based on a written request from officials at Stennis Space Center.

The letter requested that the county discourage the use of privately owned land in the Buffer Zone for billboard placement, stating that the Stennis officials would like to see the land remain open and the zoning unchanged. Lagasse said that zoning would have to be changed from agricultural to commercial for billboard placement.

Currently structures in the Buffer Zone are limited to three sided structures that would not inhibit surveillance by air. No one is allowed to reside in the area. Property owners who chose to retain their rights of ownership when the Space Center seized county property in the early 1960's still pay property taxes on that land, but gave a long term lease of their property to the government.

The issue brings up many heartfelt questions for locals, who gave up one third of county lands to the Space Center. County Clerk Tim Kellar and District 2 Supervisor Steve Seymour said they felt strongly that the land owners should be allowed the opportunity to gain from renting their land for billboard placement, especially after paying taxes on virtually unusable land for the past 40 years.

The issue puts county officials in a difficult position, not wanting to impose yet more restrictions on people who have virtually lost all their property rights, yet not wanting the entrance to the county be covered with billboards. And since restrictions and regulations would need to be county wide, the question becomes tougher to answer. "I definitely don't want Hancock County to turn into Harrison County," said District 3 Supervisor Lisa Cowand, speaking of the many billboards along the highways in Harrison County.

But the fact remains that renting to a billboard company is good economics for people who own land in the Buffer Zone. Rental can bring about $800 a month income for one billboard, said Lagasse.

Funnily enough, Space Center affiliates are the sole advertisers on the only billboard present now along Hwy. 607. Supervisors authorized Lagasse to check into guidelines for billboard use that could be adapted to suit Hancock County.

Cowand was the only supervisor to vote against extending a special use permit for Casino World on property located on the waterfront in Diamondhead. The casino project has been on hold for years said Lagasse.

Lagasse asked that county planning and zoning commissioners be given a raise from $40 per board meeting to $60 per board meeting because of the length of the meetings. Supervisors tabled the discussion until the December 17 meeting when they will look at figures indicating the cost of raising the salaries of all county appointed board members.

'Claws of Celebration'

creative JUICE

As a new art series for The Sea Coast Echo, Creative Juice will feature one piece of work by a local artist and reveal the creative process behind that work. This week, ceramic artist Susan Lumpkin discusses the inspiration behind her pattern, "Claws of Celebration." This series runs every other Thursday. Artists interested in having one of their works featured should contact Shannon Jenkins at 228-467-5474 or rsjecho@yahoo.com.

Echo: Where did the inspiration for this work come from?

Lumpkin: As a Navy wife, I spent five years in Europe, surrounded by the beautiful ceramics of the Algarve Coast of Portugal, the Andalusian Province of Spain and Northern Italy. Since I loved to paint, I met some of the artists and became intrigued with the techniques, colors, and patterns. I have taken particular inspiration from the crabs and shrimp of the Gulf Coast and West Coast in my popular pattern, "Claws for Celebration."

Echo: What do you like most about this work and why?

Lumpkin: I enjoy the interaction with the variety of people I meet in my business. I'm especially thrilled when someone shows excitement over my artwork - it gets my "creative juices" flowing!

Echo: What is unique about this artwork?

Lumpkin: Each piece is hand drawn, painted and fired by me, making no two pieces exactly alike! I also only use non-toxic materials, so these ceramics are made to be used, not just collected, so please bake with them!

Echo: Why did you create these pieces?

Lumpkin: While living in Spain, I met an artist in Cadiz and she inspired me to start this as a hobby. As most women do, I too love to entertain and set a beautiful table. Because of the versatility with color and design, my pieces went with so many other dishes I had purchased on my travels in Europe. My friends complimented the work and wanted to buy some of them, which led to the beginning of my business.

Echo: What is your vision for your business?

Lumpkin: I want to see my business continue to grow as I expand into new designs and gain more interest in my work.

TEN YEARS AGO
December 2, 2003 - Bay St. Louis city officials accepted maintenance responsibility Thursday for part of Blue Meadow Road, clearing the way for improvements to the main entrance to Casino Magic. Solutions to other casino related traffic woes remained elusive, however. Mayor Eddie Favre said the planned upgrade of Blue Meadow Road includes providing a three-lane segment off Highway 90, to accommodate left and right turn lanes, Favre said.

Julie Scianna of Bay St. Louis was elected as a freshman class favorite at Pearl River Community College during campus elections.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
December 1, 1983 - A Mississippi representative on the Tri-States Rapid Rail Commission said late Wednesday reports from Washington earlier in the day on finalization of World's Fair Train plans are premature. Delmar Wilcox of Waveland, commission member appointed by Governor William Winter, said a final announcement on the proposed fair train between Mobile and New Orleans is not due until Dec. 8. Reports from Washington Wednesday indicated Amtrak announced Bay St. Louis as one of four stops for the train in Mississippi.

A state agency plans to recommend the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District consider another discharge point for Waveland and Bay St. Louis sewage treatment plant line. The district is presently proposing extending the two outfalls, the Bay line from Edwards Bayou and the Waveland line from Watt's Bayou, to Jordan River near the Bay of St. Louis. However, about 100 angry home owners in that area jammed into the Waveland Library conference room at a Monday night public hearing and about half of them voiced their opposition to the Jordan outfall location for Waveland.

'Catastrophe Cat' a new Christmas classic

There's the Grinch, Tiny Tim, and Frosty the Snowman, and now there's a crazy fat yellow cat who causes more than a stir this Christmas season.

"My Crazy Christmas Catastrophe Cat" has been dubbed a new "Christmas classic" by Creators Syndicate cartoonist Leigh Rubin who produces the single-panel cartoon Babes®. The book, written by Hattiesburg American humor columnist Kristen Long Twedt and illustrated by Ellisville artist Dwelia Townsend Haas hit regional bookstores and Amazon.com Nov. 8, 2003. It retails for $9.95.

"This crazy cat makes a wild mess at Christmas, and his owner nearly loses her cool," says Twedt. "But, in the nick of time, the cat saves his hide by doing something nice in the spirit of the holiday. He's a good cat who just happens to do bad things."

Rhyming verse and humorous illustrations appeal to ages preschool through ten years. "I wrote the story for my son's fifth grade class for Christmas last year," says Twedt. "They laughed, and that's all it took. I knew then that I wanted to make this a real book." Dedicated to Twedt's niece, Caroline, book sales are raising funds for arts and reading programs at area schools, as well as the NIDS Coalition, a research support group in Tarzana, CA whose mission is to find a cure for Neuro Immune Dysfunction Syndrome. NIDS is an immune system mediated condition which affects more than 500,000 children in the United States diagnosed with autism and many of the more than 2.5 million with attention deficit disorder (ADD), attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) or chronic fatigue syndrome (CFS).

"My niece Caroline, who is three, was diagnosed as having NIDS. We are hoping that she reads our books to us one day," says Twedt.

The author sent the story on a whim to her cousin, Dwelia Haas who is an art instructor for Jones County schools, but the artist took the project to heart. "I did those illustrations for the fun of it," says Haas. "I'll

Plant flowering kale, cabbage in cool season

(Top) Flowering kale and cabbage excel in beds of brightly colored pansies, violas, pansies and snapdragons. (Above) Kale and cabbage also are exceptional in large containers with three in a triangular design. Plant tulips or daffodils in the center of the triangle and then place pansies around the edges.

The current weather pattern appears to have been designed with the flowering kale and cabbage in mind.

Considered among the best of all the wonderful cool-season plants, flowering kale and cabbage produce foliage in brilliant, colorful shades of lavender, green, purple, pink and white. They last from October or November through April, bringing the winter garden alive.

These plants are native to the Mediterranean and are indeed related to broccoli, cauliflower, collards and another terrific ornamental stock. The plants are a lot tougher than you may have thought -- once acclimated by cool weather, kale and cabbage can withstand temperatures in the mid-teens. The Chicago Botanic Garden has actually seen them survive minus-10 degrees.

with fertile, organic-rich soil. If the planting area consists of tight, heavy clay, amend with compost or humus to loosen. While preparing the soil, incorporate 2 pounds of a slow-release 12-6-6-fertilizer with minor nutrients per 100 square feet.

Set out nursery-grown transplants 12 to 18 inches apart and add a layer of mulch. In northern regions, they also can be planted in early spring.

Be sure to add a good layer of mulch after planting to help stabilize soil temperatures and conserve moisture. Flowering kale and cabbage are very cold hardy and usually come through the winter unscathed. If record-low temperatures are forecasted, these plants can be completely covered with pine straw until the weather warms.

Kale and cabbage need good drainage yet must be kept moist and fed to continue growing vigorously. Pay close attention to dry, cold fronts, which have a tendency to deplete significantly the available moisture. Feed with light applications of the pre-plant fertilizer every four to six weeks. OLA rolls in soccer; cagers poised

The Crescents are still undefeated in high school girls soccer while SSC has an unblemished record at 2-0-1. The Bay High Tiger hardwood teams sweep Picayune in their season series and SSC improves to 6-2 on the season. Soccer is now in full swing for all area teams and OLA remains undefeated.

On the hardwood, area teams are getting ready for the start of the division games in about a week.

The Crescents recorded a 5-0 shutout victory over the Lady Red Rebels of Harrison Central on November 25. Rachel Cranford continued her scoring dominance with two goals in the game. Ellen Dauterive tallied two assists. Jane Covington, Meghan Flynt, and Laura Ellis all tallied one goal each while Ellis and Flynt added an assist to their stat sheet. Annie Giardino preserved the shutout in goal for OLA.

girls high school soccer team in the state of Mississippi starting in 1990.

In junior high soccer action, the OLA junior high team won their first game of the year and moved to 1-0 on the season with a 7-0 win over Biloxi on the road December 1.

6-2 overall with a third place finish in the Covington Thanksgiving Tournament.

SSC is still without junior forward Mario Faranda who is expected to be out at least two more weeks with a dislocated knee cap. Faranda sustained the injury at the start of the second period in the Rocks 10-point loss to the undefeated Gulfport Admirals on November 21.

The Rocks are also missing reserve guard Cameron Hardin who has been out nursing a knee injury. However, SSC received some good news when Rob Smith returned to the team after being released to play following an illness at the start of the season. Manning, Davis & Eyster eye the Conerly Trophy

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

Football is beginning to wind down both on the high school and collegiate levels. The pros are in the waning weeks of the regular season. With college bowl season just around the corner, the end of another year on the college gridiron is on the horizon.

For the eighth time, the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame and Museum, in conjunction with Cellular South, will award the Conerly Trophy on Thursday, December 4, at the Bayview Hotel on the site of the Grand Casino-Biloxi.

The trophy is presented to the best collegiate football player in the state of Mississippi as chosen by a range of newspaper and television media. Plus, the award is being presented on the Coast for the first time in the history of the award. The three finalists for the award are senior Ole Miss quarterback Eli Manning, senior USM linebacker Rod Davis, and redshirt freshman Delta State quarterback Scott Eyster.

Manning, the youngest son of Mississippi's most famous football legend Archie Manning, has set 45 new marks in the Rebels' record books during his three seasons as a starter. He is the only Rebel in history to throw for more than 3,000 yards twice in his career and ranks third on the Southeastern Conference's all-time touchdown pass list with 79. He sits behind his older brother, Peyton, who has 89 and former Florida Gator Danny Wuerffel who threw 114 in his career.

In 2003, Manning has thrown for 3,386 yards and 28 touchdowns while leading the No. 17 Rebels to a 9-3 overall and 7-1 in the SEC and a share of the SEC West division title with the LSU Tigers. The Rebels are bowl bound but the destination has not been finalized.

Manning, a two-time All-American, won the Conerly Trophy as a sophomore at Ole Miss in 2001.

Davis, also a two-time All-American, is a native of Gulfport. Davis has put together his second consecutive triple-digit tackle season at USM.

Davis is the cornerstone of a stingy Golden Eagle defense that has carried USM to their third Conference USA title and a bid to the Liberty Bowl in Memphis.

Davis led the nation in tackles as a junior and ranks in the top 5 in the same category this season. He has willed himself into a possible first-round draft choice in the 2004 NFL draft despite not being highly recruited as a high school senior.

Eyster is a newcomer to the statewide stage. He has thrown for 3,485 yards and 30 touchdowns for the Statesmen in 2003. His totals have set numerous school records at the Cleveland, Mississippi, college.

This past season, Delta State finished with a 9-2 record and a No. 14 ranking in Division II.

The keynote speaker for the event is former Oklahoma Sooners star and current CBS sports college football analyst Spencer Tillman.

Past winners of the Conerly Trophy are Delta State's Treginal Thomas, Ole Miss QB Stewart Patridge, MSU running back James Johnson, DSU QB Josh Bright, Ole Miss RB Deuce

McAllister, Ole Miss QB Eli Manning, and USM's Rod Davis.

The award is named in honor of former Ole Miss All-American and New York Giants where he was tabbed as an All-Pro several times and led the Giants to the NFL title in 1958. Outside of the football world, Conerly was a decorated war hero and the first Marlboro Man.

Society of Seniors Championship, final round

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Spencer Sappington of Alpharetta, Ga., matched par-72 the final round and won the 21st annual Dale Morey/Society of Seniors Championship at the Casino Magic Golf Resort.

Making his first Society of Seniors title the biggest one each year, Sappington finished at five under par, 283. He had opened with 67 at the Oaks Golf Club in nearby Pass Christian, then added 71-73 on the Bridges course here.

Sappington, who matched the low score the final round on a cool, clear day, won the 2001 Willow Creek Hall of Fame Senior Invitational in Boone, N.C., for his biggest victory heretofore.

The only other player to break par for the week was Bob Hullender of San Antonio, Texas, who closed with 75 for 287 for second. He won the 1995 championship on two courses in the Hilton Head Island, S.C., area.

The Society of Seniors has more than 600 members, amateur golfers 55 years and older with handicaps of three or less. The season ends with the Ralph Bogart Winter Invitational Dec. 16-18 at Twin Eagles Country Club in Naples, Fla.

Pearl River Wildcats drop Faulkner Sun Chiefs 74-67

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Pearl River Community College's Wildcats picked up their fifth victory of the season Tuesday, taking a 74-67 victory over Faulkner State in M.R. White Coliseum and avenging their Nov. 19 road loss to the Sun Chiefs.

PRCC, the defending MACJC state champion, improved to 5-2 overall heading into its South Division opener against East Central Thursday in Poplarville. Faulkner dropped to 6-3.

The Wildcats had the Sun Chiefs' number from the outset. After scoring the game's opening goal, Faulkner managed to go up on PRCC only twice more in the contest while tying things up four times in the first half before PRCC pulled ahead for good.

Stephen Stuit's bucket with 4:20 left gave the Sun Chiefs their last lead of the night at 24-22. Jason Simmons of Hattiesburg High answered the goal with his only trey of the night 20 seconds later to put the Wildcats up by two. Stuit hit his only trey of the game with 1:10 left in the half to tie things at 29-29, but Wildcat Alvin Smith of Forrest County AHS pulled off a 3-point play in the final minute to make it 32-29 PRCC at the intermission.

The Wildcats built their lead to as many as 11 points three times in the second half. Faulkner's Krisner Green hit a 3-pointer in the final seconds to cut Pearl River's lead to 72-67, but PRCC's Kitt Jones answered the trey by sinking a pair of foul shots to end the scoring.

The River's Larry Brackins of Dothan, Ala., led all scorers in the contest with 16 points, while hauling in 7 boards and blocking 3 shots; while Carlos Cole of Hattiesburg High added 13 points and has 3 assists.

Ray Selva of Baton Rouge scored 10, blocked 5 shots, and grabbed 7 boards; while Jones scored 7, Simmons and Jonathan Williams of Stone County, 7 each; Smith 6 (1 trey), Daryl Cohen of Century, Fla., 5 (1 trey); and Jeremy Goff of Picayune High 2.

Marcus Grant paced Faulkner with 16 points (7 boards), while Green added 9 (1 trey), Jermaine Searles 8, Ryan Powell 7 (1 trey), Sylvester Evans 7, Jesse Carlin 7 (1 trey, 4 assists), Stuits 6 (1 trey), Jon Dodd 4, Kenny Holmes 3, and

Pearl River was 24 of 35 (68.6 percent) at the foul line, while Faulkner was 17 of 25 (68 percent). From 3-point range, the Wildcats hit 4 of 18 attempts (22.2 percent); while the Sun Chiefs were 4 of 14 (28.6 percent). From the field, PRCC hit 46 percent (23 of 50), while FSCC hit 41.1 percent (23 of 56).

In today's division openers against East Central, the Lady Wildcats' tip off is at 6 p.m., followed by the Wildcats' at 8 p.m. It's more division action when PRCC travels to Southwest in Summit Monday to wrap-up the pre-Christmas holiday portion of its schedule. The Southwest games are set for 6 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Following the holiday break, Pearl River will return to action Saturday, Jan. 10 against Delgado in New Orleans at 2 p.m. (women) and 4 p.m. (men).

FIFTY YEARS AGO
November 27, 1953 - A movement is underway to invite Georgia Tech or its opponent to the Sugar Bowl football game to hold their pre-game training in Bay St. Louis, city officials announced today.

Commissioner Sylvan J. Ladner said he was trying to get in touch with Brother Roland at St. Stanislaus to see if he would permit one of the college teams to use the Stanislaus facilities. Brother Roland was out of town. Ladner said he thought Bay St. Louis had a good chance of getting one of the teams.

"Seven Sugar Bowl teams have trained here before," he said. "I think if we gave them the proper facilities, the would come."

November 26, 1943 - The American people were asked today by J.A. King, Director of WPD's Office of War Utilities, to confine Christmas lighting decorations to Christmas trees inside private homes.

Mr. King asked that street decorations, community Christmas trees, exterior home decorations and interiors and exteriors of commercial establishments dispense with decorations this year insofar as lighting is concerned.

as the temperatures get colder.

Unfortunately, the same cabbage loopers that attack broccoli can be a problem for these plants as well. Watch and treat as needed with Bacillus thuringiensis. This organic pest control is safe and poses no threat to gardeners.

Flowering kale and cabbage excel in beds of brightly colored pansies, violas, panolas and snapdragons.

I am partial to the purple types grown with yellow pansies. For a really showy display, try bold drifts of pink or purple kale next to another drift of a white variety. Try planting a large bed of narcissus behind the kale or cabbage.

Kale and cabbage also are exceptional in large containers where you might place three in a triangular design. Plant tulips or daffodils in the center of the triangle and then place pansies around the edges.

There are many more varieties than gardeners realize. The Chidori series with its fringed, ruffled leaves and intense colors have become the most popular. The Peacock and Sparrow series also come recommended as some of the prettiest. If your favorites are the round-leaf types, then try the Dynasty series.

In Mississippi, the Redbor and Winterbor kale have gone off the charts in popularity as have new ornamental mustards like Red Giant and Mizuna.

Flowering kale and cabbage are not edible, but the leaves do make beautiful decorative garnishes for holiday feasts.

NASA Scientist will help expose students to wetlands research

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Dr. Marco Giardino, chief of the Applications Integration Division for NASA Stennis Space Center's Earth Science Applications Directorate, has been chosen by the JASON Project to be one of six host researchers for Disappearing Wetlands, which will run through the 2004-05 school year.

The JASON Project is a multi-disciplinary program that aims to spark students' imaginations and enhance classroom experiences by exploring the Earth. It exposes students to scientists who examine the planet's biological and geological development. The project takes its name from Jason of Greek mythology.

Giardino was chosen for Disappearing Wetlands because of his role in the Coast 2050 program, which is working to help restore 20,000 square miles of Louisiana wetlands over the next 50 years.

Giardino uses NASA satellite imagery to identify threatened wetland archaeological sites and provide data to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for evaluation.

The JASON Project chose to tell the Louisiana wetlands story for many reasons. Southern Louisiana is home to 40 percent of the coastal wetlands in the 48 contiguous states. Those wetlands serve as water purifiers and sources of biodiversity, and as buffers from Gulf of Mexico storm surges.

They are home to thousands of species of marine life, mammals and birds, and are vital to the local tourism and fishing industries.

"I'm really looking forward to participating," Giardino said. "The whole thing is about the wetlands, so my research - using remote sensing to identify cultural sites - will fit right in. I'd like to make sure each JASON student understands that their individual effort to save the wetlands can bring about positive change."

Giardino will be featured in a curriculum unit that focuses on science, technology and society.

The unit will illustrate how the interface of the three can help researchers better understand the complex wetlands system.

JASON Project coordinators described Giardino as a rare combination of scientist, historian and technologist, able to communicate the integration of the three on a level that children can understand. "He knows the topic and he's got a historical perspective that's really unique," said Ilana Schoenfeld, multimedia content manager for the JASON Project.

Caroline Joyce, JASON Project director, said Giardino's participation over the next year will help shape the development of the curriculum.

"This is where the NASA link is so great," Joyce said. "NASA has been and continues to be a very important partner to the JASON Project."

The JASON Project is the brainchild of Robert Ballard, the scientist and oceanographer who discovered the wreck of the RMS Titanic in 1986. Over the past 15 years, the JASON Project has taken more than 5 million teachers and students on field trips all over the world via satellite and the Internet.

It allows fourth- through ninth-graders access to scientists, field sites, research methods and technology. Through video, print and interactive online curriculum units, the students can literally look over researchers' shoulders as they work.

EHE helps the food pantry

A huge donation was made to the Hancock County Food Pantry from the students at East Hancock Elementary. When the school opened, fifth grade teacher, Mrs. Mary Enders, wanted the students to learn community involvement and compassion for their fellow man, so she began coordinating the Thanksgiving Food Drive. This year the students collected 1,951 food items for the food pantry, which brought the total of items collected for the past five years by the school to just over 10,000 food items. Pictured with the canned goods are students from the highest donating classes. They are Ms. Grey's class and Ms. Ender's class. Members of the local Lion's Club helped transport the food items. Lion's Club members are Phil Ramseyer, Ricky Adams, Mary Enders, EHE coordinator, and Cheryl Ramseyer, EHE principal.

Spotlight On Dining 2003 Attention Restaurant Owners...

Advertising is an investment in the success of your restaurant. Every restaurant has competition, either within the town, or nearby city. Your potential customers are being courted by your competitors. If you do not invite those customers to do business with you, they are likely to forget you and dine elsewhere. It is not uncommon for consumers to switch their dining habits from one restaurant to another. Advertising helps to keep old customers and equally as important, make new ones.

Our community is constantly growing which means that potential customers are moving into the market area all the time. Advertising gives these newcomers a reason to visit your restaurant.

Most businesses budget for their advertising expenses just as they do for other necessities such as rent, phones, etc. Smart business people realize that advertising is imperative to keep their business growing.

Another reason to advertise is that advertising is news! You profit by telling our readers what is new in your restaurant. Through advertising, you can let a wide audience know what specials you are offering, perhaps what entertainment you may have and the character of your restaurant.

If you have something to sell, then you have something to advertise. When you have nothing to advertise, you are out of business. Advertising is designed to build your business and works best when it is repeated regularly. Consistent advertising pays off!

Now that you know some of the reasons to advertise, you're probably wondering how you can advertise most effectively. Surveys show that ads in local newspapers have more impact than in any other medium. The Sea Coast Echo goes into the majority of the homes in Hancock County. The Sea Coast Echo is full of interesting reading, it is a part of our community. People like to read about people and The Sea Coast Echo is full of pictures and stories about local people. The most important reason to advertise in The Sea Coast Echo is that our readers are your customers.

If you're looking for the best advertising value for your money, then you should contact the advertising department at The Sea Coast Echo. One of our advertising representatives will be happy to discuss the many advertising options offered by The Sea Coast Echo. For more information you may call 467-5474, Monday through Friday 8am to 5pm, or stop by our office at 124 Court Street, Bay St. Louis.

Since 1892, The Sea Coast Echo is proud to be a part of your community.
